Where were you in 1994? Forrest Gump was playing in movie theaters that year, the Space Shuttle Columbia launched from the Kennedy Space Center, the Northridge Earthquake shook the San Fernando Valley, and on April 1, 1994, the Friends of Deer Hollow Farm was incorporated as a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization with the mission: To preserve Deer Hollow Farm, an historical and working farm; to support its environmental education programs; and to lessen the burden, financial and otherwise, on the City of Mountain View and other agencies who support the Farm.

I’m sure the amazing volunteers that started the Friends of Deer Hollow Farm, Joy Desai, Jane Griffith, Jerry Juracich, Mini Mourkas, and Donna Poulos, can remember April 1994 like it was yesterday. We are so grateful for the group that started the Friends and for every person who has contributed any amount of time or money over the next 25 years to assist us in our vision to make a difference.

It would take many pages to list all of the amazing things Friends of Deer Hollow Farm has accomplished in its 25 years. In addition to thousands of children that have received scholarships to the Farm and thousands of dollars in support for the animals, specific improvements have been made possible by FODHF and its generous donors (and the amazing work of our partners at MROSD for the labor). Here’s a walk down memory lane:

2008—$5,720 for a new shed to welcome Luna
2009—$15,200 for Nature Center
2010—$14,000 for Nature Center displays, livestock trailer, garden beds, and cow milking area
2011—$13,500 for milk room, Ohlone rainy-day supplies, ponchos, digital equipment for Nature Center
2012—$13,100 signage for livestock
2013—$10,800 Blacksmith’s Shed improvements, White Barn painting, new Sweat Lodge
2014—$17,000 for new chicken coop

2009—$15,200 for Nature Center

2015—$19,700 for duck shelter and pond, and egg washing room
2016—$17,600 for oak tree planting, student tools, and pig pen improvements
2017—$26,400 for Tuff Shed addition, supplies and storage for Milk Room, and goat and sheep fencing
2018—$27,200 for Village teaching materials, sheep and pig barn painting, and garage remodel
2019—$22,000 for upper pasture barn, orchard signage, and completion of fences and gates

That totals $202,200 for enhancements! This list doesn’t include a number of Scout projects funded by the Friends like fence line improvements, Ohlone Village structures, garden augmentations. These enhancements have made a huge impact on how the Farm operates. They are thoughtfully designed by Farm staff before presenting their proposals to the Friends for consideration and funding.

Friends of Deer Hollow Farm couldn’t do what we do without the amazing leadership of the past and present FODHF Board, the hard work of Farm staff, MROSD staff, Farm volunteers, and our donors. Everyone’s contributions add up. I wonder where we will be in another 5 or 10 years? We hope you’ll continue to remember the Farm in your year-end giving and stick around to find out too!

Friends of Deer Hollow Farm Short History

1994 FODHF was established to save the Farm from threatened closure.
1995 FODHF held first Farm Tours for the public.
1996 FODHF held first Ohlone Day and Friends’ “dancing children and animals” logo was designed by Keith Gutierrez and Sara Frank.
2004 Two members joined FODHF who sustained and strengthened the board through 15 years.
• Sue Gale became president of FODHF. During and between her four terms on the board, she enlarged the funding base, grew the board of six to its full size of eleven or twelve, organized the board into committees for more efficient work, and oversaw the beginning of file storage in the Cloud plus a greatly increased presence on the Web.
• Carla Dorow became treasurer and has filled many other roles including events management and grants chairman; she was always willing to do what is needed during and between her four terms. Her main contribution has been as treasurer. She set up and maintained the books, filed all the legal documents, prepared the budget, made sure that records were verified, and more.
2008 FODHF began providing funds for Farm enhancements.
2010 Sue Gale and the board led scores of Farm lovers to again save the Farm from threat of closure.
2011 FODHF newsletter was redesigned.
2014 Friends launched a new Website and enlarged its presence on the Internet.
2015 FODHF moved all records to the Cloud.
2016 Large bequests were given to both Friends and the Farm that have been designated to help renovate the White Barn.
2017 Lauren Merriman becomes president, and the mission of the board grew beyond field-trip scholarships, animal support, and Farm improvements to include spreading community awareness of the Farm.

As you hike Rancho San Antonio trails near Deer Hollow Farm, you might notice a group of children with a docent looking up at a tree to observe the branches or sniffing a leaf the docent had collected and passed around. Led by Jessica Morgan and our new lead teacher Jennifer Adams, the dedicated and knowledgeable teaching docents make these educational opportunities possible.

Karen Iwamoto, teaching docent since 2018, is rewarded for her volunteer hours when she sees “children in awe at seeing a blue jay and squirrel,” experiencing nature for the first time at the field trip. Volunteers use hands-on activities from which students learn almost without realizing it. They hear how the Ohlone pounded acorns in preparation for a meal; then students try their hands at cracking open an acorn, removing the shells, and grinding the nut. Dorothy Schafer, a docent since 2004, articulates the passion of many docents for sharing the importance of “respect for land, wildlife, and farm animals and reinforcing the idea of the interdependence of all life.” Sonja Marcus says what she enjoys most about teaching is “looking at the material through the eyes of the children.” Ginny Kaminski, who was in the second docent training class, wants to “see our kids ‘unplugged’ and outdoors!” Docents all enjoy the volunteer job that gets them outside in the beautiful setting of Rancho San Antonio and gives them the opportunity to share nature with the next generation.

When you visit Deer Hollow Farm, rain or shine, you might see the livestock volunteers cleaning animal pens, hauling feed, or giving an animal a nice scratch on the back. The livestock volunteers find working with animals to be a great break from the hustle and bustle of life in Silicon Valley. “Interacting with the animals and learning about the individual animals is always a joy,” says Susan Casner-Kay, a volunteer since 2014. Our livestock coordinator, Lisa Cornelius, trains and works closely with livestock volunteers. Becky Bradshaw, a relatively new volunteer, attests to the effectiveness of this training by expertly milking Roxy, and then moving on to milk one of the goats. Becky had no experience with animals until a few months ago when Lisa trained her.

If you’re lucky, you might find the Nature Center open thanks to volunteers such as Gary Guiffre, Larry and Donna Aronson, Christine Green, Lee Winchell, or Christine Ludwick. They answer questions and share what they know about the exhibits and the environment around Deer Hollow Farm. Dee Wood cleans the Nature Center. If you see her cleaning, she will welcome you in for a quick look around. The Nature Center is generally open the third Saturday of the month. For a detailed schedule, please check our website www.deerhollowfarmfriends.org.

Dee also serves as the farmyard docent every other Saturday when she happily shares with visitors her love for the Farm and knowledge of the animals. On Sundays, you will find Carol Jossi and Lee Winchell as farmyard docents, greeting visitors and passing on their love and knowledge of the Farm and its animals. Lee has been a teaching docent since 2000. Over the years, volunteers have seen changes at Deer Hollow Farm: added and upgraded buildings and fencing, changes in staff, and an increase in the livestock population. Long-time teaching docent, Donna Aronson, remembers when “there was only Michelle. Then Luna came to Deer Hollow Farm from Hidden Villa and was our solo cow for several years. Now we have Luna, Roxy, Henrietta, and sometimes we have a calf around.”

What has remained the same over these years is the especially close-knit community of volunteers who have lived through ups and downs in life with each other. Friendships have been made through work in the outdoor classrooms and animal pens. Volunteers experience the joy of being with like-minded people who care about animals and the environment, who enjoy working outside in the lovely setting of Rancho San Antonio, and who want school children and other Farm visitors to learn about and appreciate Deer Hollow Farm. Carla Dorow, a 20-year veteran teaching docent, sums it up well, describing her experience, “Enjoying the camaraderie of Farm staff, volunteers, local teachers, and visitors has given me a great deal of satisfaction; and I hope anyone who enjoys nature and children will consider joining us.”

The 25th year of the Friends of Deer Hollow Farm brings many successes to share and lots to look forward to in 2020. Here’s a look at what the FODHF Board has been up to in 2019.

Funding Report

The 11-member board ended its fiscal year in June with $193,000 in revenue. This year the FODHF Board provided $37,000 in Farm field trip tuition scholarships and busing for 2,613 students from low-income areas to attend 109 Farm field trips.

FODHF funds these scholarships through generous grants from Santa Clara County, the Packard Foundation, Merimac Fund and other sources. For the third year, FODHF Board provided scholarship funding to 14 Deer Hollow Farm summer camp participants. These students were recommended from the West Valley Community Services Agency.

FODHF provided $24,000 in funding for Farm enhancement projects. This year Friends funding allowed staff to build a new barn in the upper pasture for the Farm’s male animal residents, and the remaining gates have been replaced with metal gates that are safer to operate. Friends funded new interpretive signage for the orchard area and last, but not least, Friends continued funding of the portable restroom located at the Ohlone Village for use by educational programs.

FODHF donors provided an incredible $48,000 towards the Animal Fund. The Animal Fund pays for: animal feed; supplies for care, including straw for bedding; the acquisition of new animals, including chicks, geese, and heritage animals; and vet care and medicines.

We can continue to thank organizations and municipalities like the City of Cupertino ($15,000) and Los Altos Hills ($5,000) who donated again this year. The Santa Clara County Parks and Recreation Department continues to provide $75,000 of funding, and the Friends provided approximately $25,000 to help offset the cost of the Farm for the City of Mountain View.

Outreach Efforts

We try to raise awareness about the Farm out in the community whenever we have the opportunity. We continue to be present at Mountain View’s Thursday Night Live, Cupertino’s Fall Festival, and other surrounding cities. Our booths include animals when it’s safe to transport them. Of course our Board members were also part of the annual Farm events: Spring Farm Tours, Ohlone Day, and Spooky Times at Deer “Holloween” Farm.

White Barn Update

Additional assessments of the iconic white barn are being completed and presented to the MROSD Board of Directors with a variety of recommendations to rehabilitate the structure. At the time this newsletter went to print, no formal decisions regarding this structure have been made. Our original anticipated date for work to begin has been pushed out about one year, as we continue to make strides to preserve this important structure in late summer or fall of 2020.

Looking for Farm Lovers!

The FODHF Board said goodbye to long-time board member (and treasurer) Carla Dorow in September and plan to say goodbye to other important members of the team, Park Chamberlain and Nina Wong-Dobkin, vice-president, in January as they have reached their term limits. With the recent and upcoming departures the FODHF Board is currently accepting applications for new board members. If you or someone you know is passionate about the Farm and wants to get more involved, please contact Lauren@DeerHollowFarmFriends.org. We would love to gain team members who have solid communication skills. It would be a bonus if they have experience writing grants, preparing financial information, marketing, event management and/or general fundraising experience. Terms are 3-years in length, and the Board currently meets in person 4-times a year (January, March, May, and September).

More to come in 2020…

We hope to maintain our board with 11 to 12 members in 2020 as well as continue our mission to fund the vital programs that Deer Hollow Farm provides our region. More news to come on the White Barn project. As soon as we have funding goals for that project, you will likely hear more from us.

Be sure to save the dates for the 2020 Spring Farm Tours: March 21st and April 18th! On behalf of the FODHF Board we thank you for your continued support of our mission to preserve Deer Hollow Farm, an historical area and working farm, for future generations.

Meet the “mooers” of Deer Hollow Farm

by Pamela Baird

For several years, Deer Hollow Farm has kept at least two milk cows to use for demonstrations for Farm classes and visitors. Summer campers get hands-on milking lessons. Volunteers also get to milk the cows.

The breed that was selected for the Farm is the Jersey, a breed originated on the Island of Jersey, a small British island in the English Channel off the coast of France. The Jersey is one of the oldest dairy breeds, having been reported by authorities as being purebred for nearly six centuries. Jersey cattle were brought to the United States in the 1850s, although records show that early settlers took a breed similar to Jersey to the colonies in 1657.

A Jersey cow is typically light brown in color with a black nose bordered by a light-colored muzzle. A dark switch (long hair on the end of the tail) and black sturdy hooves are other markers of the breed. The cows are good tempered and docile. The Jersey cow has a high fertility rate and little or no calving problems. Both bulls and cows usually have thin and curved horns.

The most famous Jersey is Elsie the Cow, the trademark image for Borden Dairy.

Adaptable to a wide range of climatic and geographical conditions, outstanding Jersey herds are found from Denmark to Australia and New Zealand, from Canada to South America, and from South Africa to Japan. They are excellent grazers and more tolerant of heat than other breeds. Today the Jersey is the second largest breed of dairy cattle in the world.

With an average weight of 900 pounds, the Jersey produces more pounds of milk per pound of body weight than any other breed. The milk contains 18% more protein, 20% more calcium, and 25% more butterfat than that of other breeds. In many markets, milk from the Jersey commands a premium price.

Currently there are three Jersey cows at the Farm. Luna will be 12 years old this winter; she was born at nearby Hidden Villa. Friends is providing funds for her retirement. Roxie was born here to Luna in 2013.

Henrietta is a 3-year-old from nearby Claravale dairy. She was purchased in July 2018 with donations from a Farm visitor.

The cows are fed twice a day a diet of alfalfa hay and forage hay (a blend of oat hay and grass hay). Cows that are producing milk are also fed grain to help support the high caloric needs required for making milk. The grain is a mixture of corn, oats, and barley. At their peak, just after calving, a cow can produce as much as 6 gallons of milk a day.

At the Farm, milking happens only once a day, contrary to production dairies where cows are likely milked 2 or 3 times a day. Farm staff will let the calves nurse as much as they want, which takes care of the second milking. However, even with the calf drinking fully, most dairy cows over produce, and once a day milking is still needed in order to keep the cows comfortable and healthy.

In the United States today, the Jerseys have been bred to be larger than the cows first brought to the United States. They tend to range in weight from 800 to 1,200 pounds. Two of the cows at Deer Hollow Farm weigh about 1,200 pounds, and the other is about 900 pounds.

On your next visit to the farm check out the three girls. Their long eyelashes and sweet dispositions will have you charmed in no time!

Jennifer Adams joins the staff as the new lead teacher. She grew up in Willow Glen and has lived in the Bay Area her whole life. She comes to us with experience at a non-profit called Latino Outdoors and has worked for and done events with Midpeninsula Regional Open Space District. She has worked Deer Hollow Farm Tours the last two years, seeing how the Farm works and engages with the community. She is glad to be here.

This is my first visit here. On the walk we saw birds, and the creek is beautiful. The Farm is awesome. I assume there are educational programs. Nice to know where your food comes from. There are farms in Minnesota, but not farms to visit like this. I assume you get some tax dollar support and donations to make ends meet.

We like to hike trails and heard about the Farm. The trails here are outstanding. We’re here at the Farm today for the benefit of my baby daughter. This is the perfect place. It is safe and clean. We really admire the Foreman’s cabin. It must have been a nice place to live in times past. My son hopes someday to have a farm like this.

We were visiting a friend in Mountain View. We did a search for popular hikes and decided on Rancho San Antonio. We walked in and discovered this delightful Farm. We just saw its newest addition, Cleopatra, the kingsnake. Now that’s something children will remember.
We gratefully acknowledge these generous friends and community organizations who contributed to Friends of Deer Hollow Farm between May 1, 2019, and October 31, 2019.
